

In today's business environment, geographically dispersed, multi-location retailers want a bank that can meet them in every market where they do business.

You have a relationship with your bank, built on trust and an understanding of your unique business needs. Now, the Loomis Virtual Vault solution provides your bank with the ability to serve your account virtually anywhere in the country. Put simply, your bank can use our national cash distribution network, supplemented by our suite of eBusiness Solutions to provide seamless service from Portland, Oregon to Portland, Maine.

The Current System

Without the ability to directly service your company from coast to coast, your financial management team must rely on a traditional model of service. As the figure above illustrates, a system of correspondent banks is used to manage your account. This system typically creates multiple accounts and contact points, extended cycle time and, often, higher fees. As an alternative, we offer the Virtual Vault solution.

Our Solution: The Virtual Vault

Using our national cash distribution network and eBusiness Solutions, your primary bank, the one that you've come to know and trust, can serve you in nearly any market in the country. Our vault becomes your bank's Virtual Vault. We collect, process and reconcile your deposits then transmit the information to your bank. The process is invisible to you. They, in turn, are able to provide you with seamless service by using the most trusted name in the cash management industry – Loomis.

The End Result for You

Our Virtual Vault Solution provides significant advantages for retailers. These advantages include reduced cycle time, Internet-based change orders and account management, and deposit detail tracking by location. And you can reduce the number of banks by expanding your current banking relationship beyond its present borders.
